"Sunny days will come Again!" Though to-day is dark and dreary, And black clouds ar und us rise, Let us halt not, nor be weary, Light is looming in the skies! Aid and cheer each fe low creature 'Gainst the storme that round us lower, Soon they'll wear a brighter feature, And the sunstitue come with pow'r. Never, boys, give way to serrow, But be up, and act like men; Look with hope for joy to-merrow, Sunny days will come again!

Let us throw aside all sadness, Better times are on the wing ; Who can tell what joy and gladness Providence to us may bring? Nerve, then, every munly feeling, And with courage meet the storm, Let us wounded hearts be healing, And our duty still perform. Never, boys, give way to sorrow, But be up, and act like men; Look with hope for joy to-morrow, Sunny days will come again!

We should not be always sighing, Nor indulge in wild dismay; Bear in mind "old Time" is flying, Therefore wisdom more display. If our prospects be not shining, And our hearts be bowed with care, Where's the good in our repining? Still look up, and ne'er despair ! Never, boys, give way to sorrow, But be up, and set like men; Look with hope for joy to-morrow, Sunny days will come again !

Army Correspondence of the Savannah Republican. The Buttle of Missionary Ridge. ARMY OF TENNESSEE, Chickamauga, November 25, Midnight. The Confederates have sustained to-day the most ignominious deteat of the whole war-u defeat for which there is but little excuse o palliation. For the first time during our struggie for national independence, our defi a is chargeable to the troops themselves, and not to the blunders and incompetency of their leaders. It is difficult for one to realize how a deleat so complete could have occurred on gr and so favorable, not withstanding the great isparity in the forces of the two hostile armies. The ground was more in our favor than it was at Fredericksburg, where Gen. Longstreet is said to have estimated that Lee's army was equal to 300,000 m.en. And yet we gained the battle of Fredericksburg and lost that of Missionary Ridge.

The Federal army was marshalled under

Grant, Thomas, Hooker and Sherman, and did not number less than 85,000 veteran troops. The Confederate army under Bragg, Hardee and Breckinridge, did not number half so many. Longstreet's Virginia divisions and other troops had been sent to East Tennessee. Had these been present, with their steady leader at the head of them, we should have won a victory quite as complete as our defeat has been. As it was, we ought to have won the day, and should have done so if our men had dire as well as usual. Possibly a mistake was committed when Long-treet was sent away, and possibly it would have been better not to have accepted battle to-day. but retreated last night. Gen. Bragg thought, however that there was not time, after the loss of Lookout, to get his army safely over the Chickamanga last night, and that it would be better, occupying so strong a position, to fight it out. But what could be expect from battle where the odds were so much against him? Not only did Grant have nearly three to one in numbers, but the geographical configuration of the ground, in manusuvering an army, was as favorable as he could desire. Nature had provided an ample protection for his flanks and rear, and rendered his front alntage of being able to managure his army upon the chord of a semi-circle, whilst Bragg could move upon the are. Grant deployed his immense ma ses in two beavy lines of battle, and sometimes in three. supported by large reserve forces. The spectacle was magnificent, as viewed from the crest of Missionary Ridge. He advanced first against our right wing, about ten o'clock, where he encountered that superb sol lier, Lieut. Gen. Hardee, who commanded on the right, while Maj. Gen. Breckinridge commanded on the left. Hurdee's command embraced Cleburne's, Walker's, (commanded by Gen. Gist, Gen. Walker being absent,) Cheatham's and Stevenson's divisions. Breckinridge's ainbraced his old division, commanded by Brig. Gen. Lewis, Stewart's, part of Backner's, and Hindman's, commanded by fat on Anderson. The enemy's first assault upon Hardee was repulsed with great slaughter as was his second, though made with double lines supp reed with heavy reserves. The wave of battle like the wave of the sea when it dashes against a rock-bound coast, beat, and hissed, and struggled in vain, for the brave men who gnarded our right were resolved never to yield one foot to the bated invaders. The odds against which they contended were fearful; for while the enemy advanced in two and even three massive lines, their own army consisted of only one long and weak line, without supports. Yet they not only repulsed every attack, but captured seven flags, about three hundred prisoners, and remained masters of the ground until night, when they were ordered to retire, carrying off all their guns, losing no prisoners, and but a small per centage of killed and wounded. The whole command behaved well, and especially that model soldier, Maj. Gen. Cleburne, a true son of the Emerald Isle, and his heroic division. Gen. Hardee saved the army from a disastrous rout, and added fresh laurels to his brow.

The attack on the left wing was not made until about noon. Here, as on the right, the anemy was repulsed; but he was obstinate, and fought with great ardor and confidence, returning to the charge again and again in the handsomest style, until ence of our brigades near the centre. said to be Reynold', gave way and the Federal ling was planted on Missionary Ridge. The enemy was not slow in availing himself of the great advantages of his non-position. In a few minut's he turned upon our flinks and poured into them a terrible cofilading fire, which soon threw the Confederates on his right and left into confusion. Under this confusion, the already extensive gap in our lines grew wider and wider, and the wider it grew the faster the multitudinous foe rushed into the yawning chasm. The confusion extended until it finally assumed the form of a panic. Seeing the enemy in possession of a portion of the heights, the men hastily concluded that the day was gone, and that they had best save themselves. Just at this time the alarm was increased by an artillery battery which rushed down the hill to the river for a fresh supply of ammu-nitios; the men, however, supposed they were flying from the field, and that ail was lost. Nearly the whole left wing eventually became involved, and gave way—a portion of it retir-unmitigated rout.

General Bragg did all he could to rally the figitives and re form the broken line. He exposed himself in the most unguarded manner, and at one time it looked as if he would be reinly be killed. He staff of the staff of certainly be killed. His stuff officers were also conspicuous in their efforts to restore also conspicuous in their efforts to restore our line. They and their, chief were the last to leave the Ridge.

The day was lost. Hardee still maintained his ground; but no success of the right wing could restore me left to its original position. All men—even the bravest—tre subtion. All men-even the bravest- tre subject to error and confusion; but to day some of the Confederates did not fight with their accustomed courage. Possibly the contrast between the heavy masses of the Federals as they rolled across the valley and up the mountain ridge, and their dwn long and attenuntel line, was not of a character to encourage them.

Our casualties are small-very smallsmall, indeed, to be recorded along with so complete and humiliating a defeat. Included among our losses are some of our best gunsperhaps as many as thirty or forty. The infautry supports in some instances fled so pre-cipitately that there was no time left to remove the guns. There were but few roads down the mountain by which they could re treat, and this occasioned further loss. All the artillery behaved well. The men in Cobb's battery stood their ground after their supports had fled, and though they last their guns, they fought them to the last and when they could use them no longeron account of the steel noss of the descent they burled hand prenades against the foe as he crawled up the mountain beneath the muzzles of the guns. The enemy's loss must have ex eeded ours ten to one. Our dead and some of our we unded were left on the field. Gen. Bragg's Farewell Order.

. [Special to the Atlanta Intelligencer.] DALTON, Dec. 2. The following order has been issued from headquarters: GENERAL ORDER, No. 214.

Upon renewed application to the President his consent has been obtained for the relinquishment of the command of this army. It s accordingly transferred to Lieut, General Hardee.

The announcement of this separation is made with unfeigned regret. An association of more than two years which hinds together a commander and his trusted troops, cannot he severed without deep emotion. For a common cause, dangers shared on many hard fought fields have cemented bonds which ime can never impair. The circumstances which render this step proper will be appreciated by every good soldier and true patriot. The last appeal the General has to make to the gallant army which has so long, so nobly sustained him, is to give his successor that cordial and generous support so essential to the success of your arms. In that successor, you have a veteran whose brilliant reputation you have aided to achieve. To the officers of my general staff who have so long zealously and so e safully struggled against serious difficulties to support the army and myzelf, is due in a great degree, what little success and fame we have achieved. Bidding them and the army an affictionate farewell, tuey have the bleasings and prayers of a grate BRAXTON BRAGG. ful friend.

Gen. Hardee's Order on Assuming Command.

> [Special to Atlanta Intelligencer.] DALTON, Dec. 2.

On assuming command Lieutenant General E indee issued the following General Order to the foldiers of the Army of Tennessee :

"General Bragg having been relieved from duty with this army, the command has devolve ed upon me. The steady purpose-the unflinchng courage and unsullied patriotism of the distinguished leader who has shared your fortones for more than two years, will long be remembered by the army and the country he served so well.

I desire to say on assuming command that there is no cause for discouragement. The overwhelming numbers of the enomy forced us back from Missionary Ridge, but the army is still intact and in good heart; our losses were small and were rapidly replaced. The country is looking to you with painful interest. I feel I can rely upon you. The weak ude need to be cheered by the constant succ ses of the victors of Shiloh, Perryville, most impregnable. He possessed the addi- Murire sharo and Chickamauga, and requires such stimulant to sustain their courage and resolution. Let the past ake care of itself.

We care most to secure the future. (Signed) W. J. HARDEE Lieut. General.
